1. Know The Purpose Of Memorizing Quran

The most important Hifz tip is that you must consider your purpose. Make certain that your goal is solely for Allah's sake, to seek His pleasure and mercy. It is not to brag in front of others about how well you know the Quran. You must honestly believe that the Quran is Allah's word and that memorizing it is nothing more than an effort to seek Allah's blessings.

2. Learn Arabic To Memorize The Holy Quran

It is a common belief that if you know the language, you will be able to remember the message quickly. The Quran is written in Arabic. It is difficult to memorize even any verse of the Quran if you do not know Arabic.

So, if you want to develop your memory so that you can memorize the Quran, you should learn at least a little Arabic. Take Bismillah Schooling's learn Quran online course, which teaches you how to understand the Quranic terminology in just a few lessons. You will be able to read the Quran in Arabic after that. This training is great for individuals who are short on time!

3. Increase Your Memory Capacity

You should employ the Memory Palace technique to lessen the cognitive load and eliminate boring, repetitive memorization. This technique allows you to turn space into a kind of "container" in which you can store Quran verses in your mind for long-term retention.

The majority of people are unable to memorize a text such as the Quran without the aid of a Memory Palace. The good news is that you can use any space in your home with strong phonetic pronunciation.

4. Short Learning Intervals & Memorize Quran In Small Parts

Another one of the best hifz quran tips is memorizing the Holy Quran in short intervals. It is ideal to concentrate your efforts for short periods of time. Taking classes that are only a few hours long is more effective than taking classes that are several hours long.

Pushing your limits when it comes to memorizing the Holy Quran is not a good idea. Rather than learning and memorizing for hours at a time, you should separate your memorizing sessions into distinct periods.

Some experts recommend 15 to 30 minute online Quran study sessions, while others recommend 30 to 45 minutes.

In light of these experts' recommendations, Bismillah Schooling offers 12 to 20 30- to 45-minute Quran memorization courses every month to assist students in learning brief surahs online.

5. Listen To Different Recitations Of The Quran - Choose An Audiovisual Source

Listening to different recitations of the Quran can help you memorize its verses. Repeatedly listening to the same ayahs will imprint them in your mind and make them easy to recall.

When listening to the Quran, make sure it's visible and audible. Different people react to information in different ways, so finding a source that works for you may take some time.

Choose an audio recording of a Qari reciting the Quran and listen to it during the day or before going to bed. You will become more familiar with the passages and your ability to memorize the Quran will improve.

6. Continue To Revise Quran On A Regular Basis

When it comes to memorizing information, revision is crucial. Similarly, when it comes to learning the Surahs, revision is crucial.

Continue to revise the Quran on a regular basis to ensure you don't forget anything. It is one of the most important tips to Hifz Quran effectively.

The majority of people have difficulty recalling verses that they have memorized. The main cause is that they do not pay attention to their revision.

Remember that if you don't revise the verses, remembering them will be extremely impossible. If you want to learn how to memorize surahs quickly, don't just memorize the new verses. Take a day off to review all you've learned thus far.

7. Make Up Your Own Homophone Transliterations

Many English transliterations of the Quran can be found online for free. However, memorizing from these can be a real pain. You can add the chore of mastering the Arabic transliteration rules if you like.

8. After You've Established The Sound, Add Meaning

You can skip this step if you already know Arabic. However, if you don't, I strongly advise you to concentrate on Arabic first, then add the English meaning.

While memorizing the Quran, add meaning in your language so that you can memorize it in no time. These meanings keep the Quran's words in your mind for a long time. So establishing the meaning of the words helps you in Quran memorization effectively.

9. Carry The Quran With You Throughout The Day

Carrying the Quran on your phone will help you to memorize it throughout the day. You can memorize it whenever you get the time in your daily routine.

Such a habit will help you in multiple Quran memorization revisions. And when it comes to memorizing information, revision is crucial. Similarly, when it comes to learning the Surahs, revision is crucial.

The majority of people have difficulty recalling verses that they have memorized. The main cause is that they do not pay attention to their revision.

Remember that if you don't revise the verses, remembering them will be extremely impossible. If you want to learn how to memorize surahs quickly, don't just memorize the new verses. Take a day off to review all you've learnt thus far.

10. Throughout The Day, Put Yourself To The Test

You should put yourself to the test by writing what you've memorized by hand in order to encourage active recall. This is another excellent method for accelerating the memorizing process.

Whether you've learned multiple lines or only one, it's critical to test as often as possible. The testing procedure will also assist you in correcting any mistakes you may have made.

You can test during this downtime, just as you can infuse more of the Quran while on breaks or riding the bus. It's far preferable to wasting time.
